2.1 Historical Background

Indigenous History Background

The enduring history of First Nation Peoples in Halton Hills can be traced back through time immemorial before contact with Europeans in the 1600s. Prior to the arrival of European settlers, the Credit River was central to Indigenous ways of life, supporting settlements, fisheries, horticulture, transportation, and trade. Iroquoian-speaking peoples, ancestors of the Wendat, occupied the Credit River Valley for hundreds of years until approximately the mid-1600s, establishing semi-permanent villages. There are numerous archaeological sites in Halton Hills dating from this period, ranging from village sites to burial grounds, which reveal a rich cultural heritage.

The Wendat were displaced by the Haudenosaunee around 1649-50 amid the conflicts that arose between European colonial powers and their First Nation allies. The Mississaugas (part of the Anishinaabe Nation) arrived in southern Ontario in the 1690s, settling in two groups along the north shore of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. The western group, occupying the area between Toronto and Lake Erie, became known as the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. Until the early 19th century, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation followed a seasonal cycle of movement and resource harvesting along the Credit River (Missinnihe, meaning “trusting creek”), and other rivers. In the winter months, extended family groups hunted in the Halton Hills area, travelling south towards the mouth of the river in the spring for the salmon run. The Mississaugas’ fisheries and traditional economies were diminished because of increased Euro-colonial settlement, leading to a state of impoverishment and dramatic population decline.

In 1818, the British Crown negotiated the purchase of 648,000 acres of land from the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation, including present-day Halton Hills, under the Ajetance Treaty (No. 19), named after Chief Ajetance. This left the Mississaugas with three small reserves on the Lake Ontario shoreline. The legitimacy of early land “surrenders” to the Crown is questionable when considering the Mississaugas’ traditional understanding of property ownership. Unlike the British, the Mississaugas understood land in spiritual terms, and did not share the idea that access to land and resources could be given up permanently.

In 1986, the Mississaugas initiated a claim against the Government of Canada over the 1805 Toronto Purchase. On June 8, 2010, the parties involved reached a final compensatory agreement. It resulted in a cash payment of $145 million to the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation¹.

Early European History: 1843-1909

During the mid-nineteenth century, Morris Kennedy was appointed to survey the village of Georgetown. Kennedy laid out the plan of subdivision along Guelph Street, and in 1843, Lot 41 was sold to Maurice O’Carroll. Over the next several years, the property exchanged hands several times, from Maurice O’Carroll to James Moore, James Moore to William Patterson Moore, William Patterson Moore to Mary Jane Moore, Mary Jane Moore to Arthur Burnham Castell, and then from Castell to Robert Donald Warren (1864-1943) for $600 in 1909.

¹ This brief overview of Pre-Treaty Indigenous Territory within the land now known as Halton Hills is taken from the Town of Halton Hills’ 2023 Cultural Heritage Strategy. This document includes additional recommendations relating to Truth and Reconciliation in Heritage Planning as part of the Town’s commitment to advancing Truth and Reconciliation.

Warren Family

Following the purchase of the property, Warren retained local contractor John Boyd (J.B) Mackenzie (1878-1947) to design their home. J.B. Mackenzie was born in Esquesing Township and attended Dublin School as a child. After learning the carpentry trade, Mackenzie opened his own shop in the countryside, later settling in Acton. Once the business began to prosper, Mackenzie established a planing mill in 1900 and later purchased H.P. Lawson's planing mill in 1909. By 1915, Mackenzie moved to Georgetown with his wife, Eliza McQueen (1878-1955), to live along Mill Street.

In addition to the mills, Mackenzie operated a contracting business and designed a number of buildings throughout Halton Hills, including the Roxy Theatre, Gregory Theatre, Coated Paper Mill, and Post Office. J.B. Mackenzie also designed multiple residential buildings throughout Georgetown and Acton. Aside from his work, Mackenzie was also a local politician who served as a Council member for 4 years, before being elected as mayor in 1930.

After J.B. Mackenzie provided the drawings for the building, it is likely it was constructed between 1909-1912, as the 1911 Census shows R.D. Warren living with his family along Main Street in Georgetown. Warren was a prominent member of the community, originally born in Acton, and attended Acton Public School, Brampton High School, and Milton Normal School. He was also the former editor of the Georgetown Herald from 1886-1909 and owned the Halton Conservator which operated from 1901 until 1906. Between 1903 and 1904, Warren served as the Reeve for Georgetown. Additionally, Warren was a magistrate in 1910 and was nominated to represent the Liberal Party for the County of Halton for the 1911 Provincial Election.

In later years, Warren served as the editor of the Canadian Baptist and held positions of Officer of the Treasurer and President of the Baptist Convention. During his time in Georgetown, Warren was the Superintendent of the Baptist School for 30 years and a member of the Senate of McMaster University. Warren was also voted in as the third vice president at the Halton County Alliance in 1913.

While residing on Guelph Street, Warren lived with his wife Minnie (nee. Bessey) (1861-1934). Minnie Warren was involved in various community organizations, primarily the Georgetown Baptist Church in which she served as the organist and choir leader. In 1913, the Warren family relocated to Toronto.

Garbutt Family

Frederic Garbutt (1877-1965) purchased the property from Robert and Minnie Warren in 1914. Garbutt was a longstanding clerk of the McGibbon Hotel during his time in Georgetown until moving to the City of Welland in 1919.

Figure 14: McGibbon Hotel located along Main Street, where Frederic Garbutt worked as a clerk, c. 1911 (EHS245)

After arriving in Welland, Frederic was the proprietor of the Dexter Hotel. He also purchased the Victoria Hotel in Dunnville which he operated until 1960. Frederic's wife Anna (nee. McLean) (1889-1945) and daughter Mary (1910-1984) lived with Frederic on Guelph Street.

Gollop Family and Evans Family

The subject property was transferred to Anna Garbutt in 1919, who during the same year sold the property to Benjamin Gollop (1865-1936). Benjamin lived with his wife, Victoria (nee. Pearen) (1869-1957), son Frederick (1898-1984), and daughter Marion (b. 1907).

By trade, Benjamin was employed as a dentist and received his diploma from the Royal College of Dental Surgeons in 1890. Before settling in Georgetown, Benjamin owned dental practices in both Milton and Norval, occasionally practicing within Campbell's Hotel in Georgetown. After moving to Georgetown, he relocated directly above the storefront at 76 Main Street South. Benjamin's wife, Victoria was an active member of the community as she was involved in the Georgetown Women's Institute and sang in the Norval Methodist Church choir.

In addition to his practice, Dr. Gollop was elected as a Scribe and a member of the Examining Board for the Halton Chapter No. 234 of the Royal Arch Masons (R.A.M) of Georgetown in 1934, later serving as a Treasurer in 1935. In 1930, Dr. Gollop was also nominated as a Trustee for Ward 3 and was a member of the Public School Board from 1931-1932.

During the Gollop family's ownership, citizens began to express interest in establishing a war memorial to commemorate the lost Georgetown soldiers. In 1919, the Soldiers Memorial Committee met for the first time in the Georgetown Council Chambers in the Townsends Market Hall to discuss the erection of a monument in the Town. After discussions were held, the Georgetown Council initially resolved that the war memorial should take the form of a plaque and commemorative garden outside the public library, located at the former Congregational Church on Market and Church Streets. However, residents had conflicting ideas on the location and design for the war memorial, leading to lengthy discussions amongst local officials and growing frustration amongst citizens.

In December 1922, Town Council passed a by-law to raise $6,000 through taxation and floated an $8,000 debenture, awarded to Mappin & Webb of Montreal. The war memorial featured a bronze lion cast in England, which brought Georgetown one step closer to seeing the completion of the monument.

By April 1924, Council voted to establish the memorial at the junction of Main Street and Guelph Street directly in front of the subject property, marking the “gateway” to Georgetown’s Main Street. On August 30, 1924, the memorial was unveiled by General Sir Arthur Currie, with Captain Woodcock, former Chaplain of the 164th Battalion, leading the service, and Canon Cody of Toronto dedicating the Memorial. The memorial remained in front of the subject dwelling until 1960, when the monument was relocated to Memorial Park, which provided a more quiet and secluded setting.

Following Benjamin’s death in 1936, Victoria inherited the property and continued to live in Georgetown until the mid-1940s before moving to Kitchener. Dr. Gollop was laid to rest with Masonic honors in Norval Cemetery, with many friends and family in attendance. Victoria sold the property to James Evans (1914-1974) and June Evans (1914-2015) in 1945 and deeded a portion of the property to the Town council where the war memorial stood in 1946.

James and June had married in 1941 and lived in Nassau, Bahamas where James was stationed for two years during WWII before moving to Georgetown. While enlisted, June saved James' military salary, so they could afford their first home at 2 Guelph Street. The Evans also raised their two daughters, Mary and Barbara, while living at the subject property.

June attended Hamilton Normal School, later studying at McMaster University to pursue a career in teaching. While balancing her studies, June was an avid pianist and often performed in a band called the Sod Busters Weekly, which was broadcast from CKOC radio-station at the Royal Connaught Hotel in Hamilton during the Great Depression. At the age of 17, June moved back to Esquesing to begin her teaching career at SS#7 Nassagaweya School, later teaching at Georgetown Public School, and Chapel Street School in Georgetown. One of June's students, Kenneth Langdon, went on to become a Judge in the Ontario Court of Justice (General Division) from 1990-1999, and a Judge in the Superior Court of Justice from 1999-2013.

James was involved with the local board of education as a secretary-treasurer for 15 years, before being appointed to the position of Supervisor of Plant Maintenance and Operation for the Georgetown Public School Board.

In addition to his work at the school board, James operated an insurance agency with his father, known as the “Walter T. Evans Insurance Agency”. The family business was operated out of the former Gregory Theatre on Mill Street in Georgetown. James was also a member, Elder, Member of the Board, and Trustee of St. John’s United Church. After James’ passing 1974, June married Frank Durrant (1911-1994), who was a Past Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, Past Deputy and Chairman and Director of Sedgwick Forbes, London, and a retired member of Lloyds of London.

1970s to Present

In 1972, James and June sold the property to Joan Jeffery (1926-2021) and Robert Jeffery. In 1981, the property was sold to Timothy Thexton and Marie Martineau. In 1982, the property was sold to Eric and Cathrine Lucas, and later to William Manderson in 1986. During the 1990s, the property changed hands several times before being purchased by its current owners in 2017.

2.2 Property & Architectural Description

The subject property is located along the southeast corner of the Guelph Street and Main Street South intersection in the community of Georgetown, within the Town of Halton Hills. The irregularly shaped lot features a two-storey red brick dwelling with a hipped roof, projecting brick and stone plinth foundation, and one-storey attached sunroom.

The front (northwest) elevation features a bay with flatheaded window openings with stone sills and lintels at the first and second storeys, along with a central flatheaded entryway with a limestone lintel, enclosed by a painted wooden portico with gable roof and plain columns, and a wooden porch. To the right of the entrance is a flatheaded window opening with a stone sill and lintel.

Directly above the portico at the second storey is a flatheaded window opening with a stone sill and lintel, along with a larger flatheaded window opening with a stone sill and lintel to the right.

2.3 Architectural Style

The Edwardian style, or Edwardian Classicism, emerged during the 20th century and was a simplified and humble style compared to the more intricate architectural styles found throughout the late-nineteenth century. The Edwardian style provided an alternative to contemporary period and Colonial Revivals, which were often influenced by Victorian architecture.

In Ontario Architecture, Shannon Kyles notes that Edwardian Classicism style buildings typically feature modest and balanced facades, and featured details such as, but not limited to:

- Gabled or hipped roof shapes;
- Dormers included on the front and/or side elevations;
- Large painted wooden porches or large porticos;
- Multiple window openings with flatheaded openings; and,
- Smooth brick facades and tall brick chimneys.

The existing dwelling at 2 Guelph Street is reflective of many characteristics found in Edwardian style buildings, including the hipped roof, smooth brick façade and tall brick chimneys, multiple flatheaded window openings, contemporary portico encasing the front entryway, and dormer along the side (northeast) elevation. On the northeast (side) elevation, an existing door opening has been enclosed and infilled with red brick. Despite these interventions, the building has maintained its massing and shape and remains an excellent example of Edwardian Classical architecture.

3.0 Description of Heritage Attributes and Evaluation Checklist

The following evaluation checklist applies to Ontario Regulation 9/06 made under the Ontario Heritage Act: Criteria for Determining Cultural Heritage Value or Interest. The criteria are prescribed for municipal designation of Heritage Properties under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act. The evaluation tables utilize an 'X' to signify applicable criteria and 'N/A' to signify criteria that are not applicable for this property.

Design or Physical Value
Is rare, unique, representative, or early example of a style, type, expression, material, or construction method	X
Displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit	N/A
Demonstrates a high degree of technical or scientific achievement	N/A

The property at 2 Guelph Street has physical and design value as a representative example of Edwardian Classical architecture in the community of Georgetown, within the Town of Halton Hills. The existing building features a modest design with a hipped roof, smooth brick façade and two tall brick chimneys, multiple flatheaded window openings, contemporary portico encasing the front entryway, and dormer along the side (northeast) elevation. Over time, the building has been modified with the infill of an existing door opening along the northeast elevation, and the replacement of the original wood portico on the front (northwest) elevation. Despite these interventions, the building has maintained its original footprint and location and retains many characteristics of the Edwardian Classical style.

Historical or Associative Value
Has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization, or institution that is significant to a community.	X

Historical or Associative Value
Yields, or has potential to yield, information that contributes to an understanding of a community or culture	N/A
Demonstrates or reflects the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer, or theorist who is significant to a community	X

The property at 2 Guelph Street has historical and associative value due to its associations with the early owners of the property throughout the early-to-mid twentieth century. The extant dwelling was originally constructed for R.D. Warren, editor of the Georgetown Herald from 1886-1909, and owner of the Halton Conservator, which was published between 1901 and 1906. Between 1903-1904, Warren served as the Reeve for Georgetown and was the superintendent of the Baptist School for 30 years. R.D. Warren also served as the editor of the Canadian Baptist and held positions of Officer of the Treasurer and President of the Baptist Convention. Warren was also a member of the Senate of McMaster University and was voted in as the third vice president at the Halton County Alliance in 1913. Additionally, Warren was a magistrate in 1910 and was nominated to represent the Liberal Party for the County of Halton in the 1911 Provincial Election. Minnie Warren was also involved in the Georgetown Baptist Church, serving as its organist and choir-leader for several years.

The property is also associated with the Gollop family, who lived in the house from 1919-1945. Dr. Benjamin Gollop was a dentist and local businesses owner who owned a practice along Main Street in Georgetown. In addition to his practice, Dr. Gollop was elected as a Scribe and a member of the Examining Board for the Halton Chapter No. 234 of the Royal Arch Masons (R.A.M) of Georgetown in 1934, later serving as Treasurer in 1935. Dr. Gollop was also nominated as a Trustee for Ward 3 in 1930 and was a member of the Public School Board from 1931-1932. Victoria Gallop was involved in the Georgetown Women's Institute and sang in the Norval Methodist Church choir. Shortly after leaving Georgetown, Victoria deeded the war memorial lands to Town Council in 1946.

The property is also associated with June and James Evans. June worked as a teacher at the former SS#7 Nassagaweya School along Fifth Line and at Chapel Street School in Georgetown. James was involved with the local board of education as a secretary-treasurer for 15 years, before being appointed to the position of Supervisor of Plant Maintenance and Operation for the Georgetown Public School Board. James also operated an insurance agency with his father in the former Gregory Theatre along Mill Street in Georgetown. Additionally, James was also a member, Elder, Member of the Board, and Trustee of St. John's United Church.

The property also has historical associations with prominent contractor J.B. Mackenzie, who was retained to design and construct the building for R.D. Warren. During his career, J.B. Mackenzie operated two mills in Georgetown and Acton and operated his contracting business "J.B. Mackenzie & Son". In addition to 2 Guelph Street, J.B. Mackenzie designed a number of buildings throughout Halton Hills, including the Roxy Theatre, Gregory Theatre, Coated Paper Mill, and Post Office. Aside from his work, Mackenzie was also a local politician who served as a Council member for 4 years, before being elected as mayor in 1930.

Contextual Value
Is important in defining, maintaining, or supporting the character of an area	X
Is physically, functionally, visually, or historically linked to its surroundings	X
Is a landmark	N/A

The property at 2 Guelph Street is important in defining, maintaining, and supporting the early twentieth century character and development of Downtown Georgetown. The property is located in a high concentration of cultural heritage resources and is visually and historically linked to its surroundings in the residential neighbourhood, as a former residential building. The existing building within the subject property has not been identified as a landmark.

4.0 Summary

Following research and evaluation according to Ontario Regulation 9/06, it has been determined that the property at 2 Guelph Street has physical and design, historical and associative, and contextual value and therefore meets Ontario Regulation 9/06 criteria for determining cultural heritage value or interest.

The heritage attributes of the property at 2 Guelph Street are identified as follows:

- The setback, location, and orientation of the existing building along Guelph Street in Georgetown;
- The scale, form, and massing of the existing c.1912, two-storey Edwardian residential building with hipped roof, brick chimneys, and projecting brick and stone plinth foundation;
- The materials, including red brick and stone detailing throughout;
- Front (northwest) elevation:
 - o The two-storey bay with two flatheaded window openings with stone sills and lintels;
 - o Flatheaded window openings at the first and second storey with stone sills and lintels;
 - o Flatheaded entryway with stone lintel;
 - o Historical existence of a one-storey wooden portico located directly above the entryway;
- Side (northeast) elevation:
 - o Flatheaded window openings at the first and second storey with stone sills and lintels;
 - o Shed dormer with flatheaded window opening;
- Side (southwest) elevation:
 - o Two flatheaded window openings at the second storey with stone sills and lintels; and,
 - o Brick chimney extending from the first storey above the roofline.
